The size of the crack is 2.6 MB.Q: How to add a button in javaFX tableview row which adds a new row in the tableview I am new to JavaFX. I have a tableview which has an array as data which is load from a POJO to FXML Controller class. So when I press the button, I need to add a new row in the tableview without reloading the whole data. How can I do that? Note: I am not going to add a database to make changes in this. So I need to do it using JDBC instead of database. A: To add a new row you need a list that stores the data of each row public class TableRow { private final List columnNames; private final List columnValues; public TableRow(String... columnNames) { this.columnNames = Arrays.asList(columnNames); this.columnValues = new ArrayList(); } public List getColumnNames() { return columnNames; } public List getColumnValues() { return columnValues; } } Then you can declare the table like this TableView tableView = new TableView() { @Override protected void updateItem(TableRow item, boolean empty) { if (empty || item == null) { setText(null); setGraphic(null); } else { Text title = (Text) getItemAt(0); Label columnValues = (Label) getGraphicAt(0); title.set
