

Kindly let me know if you find any improvements in the formatting of this post. I was able to do it for Russian language so I thought I would change it to a more readable format for other languages. A: This looks like it'll work for any language. It's certainly not perfect, and I'm sure there are cases that will cause problems, but this should work for a decent majority of the languages we have a lot of. These two functions will get your headings into the right order: `/// Parse the document and returns a dictionary of the headings /// containing the document to parse /// The language to use when looking up the headings /// public static IDictionary ParseHeadings(string doc, string expectedInputLanguage) { string line = String.Empty; string[] sections = new string[0]; // Loop over all the lines of the document, checking for and tags foreach (string s in doc.Split("\r".ToCharArray())) { // Ignore empty lines, as well as ' ' and ' ' that are added to prevent the parser from going into an infinite loop if (s != String.Empty) { if (Regex.IsMatch(s, pattern, RegexOptions.IgnoreCase) { // Look for all the section headers MatchCollection matches = Regex.Matches(s, pattern, RegexOptions.IgnoreCase | RegexOptions.ExplicitCapture | RegexOptions.Singleline); // If a section has been found, go through the section heading lines, assigning them to the sections array if (matches`

The administration asked for the stay on Dec. 28, the day after California officials passed the measure. The suit, which seeks to undo the regulation that has been the signature achievement of President Barack Obama's environmental policy, is expected to be heard in U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California. Judge William Alsup, an appointee of President Ronald Reagan, blasted the Justice Department for going to court without showing the judge that his earlier opinion was wrong, as would have been required under federal rules. "I am still waiting to see the record of the court's opinion," Judge Alsup said in his order. The department had argued in its request for the stay that the regulation would conflict with sections of the Clean Air Act, which regulates pollution, and that Alsup's original ruling should be struck down. The judge said that sections of the law would not require the government to adopt the more stringent rule. "This is a question of law, and the district court is in the best position to decide whether the Administrator's actions are permitted by federal law," the judge wrote. The California law sets a target of 50 percent reduction in emissions below 1990 levels by 2030 and was a notable victory for the Democratic-led state legislature, which carefully crafted the legislation to ensure legal approval and approval by the California Air Resources Board, the state's air-quality regulator.
