The charges, which are still pending, were launched against him after he revealed questionable numbers which were used to confirm statements by former Vice President Dick Cheney that the United States was the world's number one oil producer during the tenure of Saddam Hussein. He told the Washington Post earlier this year that he hoped the focus on his disclosure would help turn public opinion against the war in Iraq. At the time of his arrest, Johnston was only charged with falsifying a tax form. Although Johnston is currently free on a $50,000 unsecured bond, he may face up to five years in prison and a $500,000 fine. His "paper trail" shows that he had acquired $195,000 of oil futures contracts and used part of that to pay for his mortgage. "I am very concerned about the implications for journalism in an age when people can blog, e-mail and tweet all day long with no expectation of fact-checking and verification," says Kendall Myers, the president of the Poynter Institute d0c515b9f4
