KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA - MARCH 20: Head coach Stan Drulis of Malaysia before the men's 20th Asian Beach Volleyball Championships 2019 at Sentosa Sports Complex on March 20, 2019 in Singapore. (Photo by Tarun Dey/MCT via Getty Images) Mitch Larkin is not the biggest headline in the global beach volleyball circuit, but he still deserves some recognition. The former Prime Minister of New Zealand came into the spotlight this week, not for being a star of the game, but for his famed patience and restraint. Drulis would have been tempted to blow his whistle when the Chinese players were faced with a short corner in the first game. Larkin, the No. 2 man, wisely settled for the long ball. Mitch Larkin may not have been the star of the show, but he was the glue that held the New Zealand men's team together during the Asian Beach Volleyball Championships. Coach Stan Drulis was eventually stripped of his coaching duties for his conduct towards his female partner Hayley Saunders, who missed a mandatory drug test. Krish (right) Wang Zhenwei, Jason (left) Chou, Erik (centre) Peter Wang While the incident made headlines around the world, most people knew nothing about the former federal politician, Mitch Larkin, who stepped in with a deft professionalism that few understand. How, for instance, did he know that the players would not be getting refilled water in their bottles? Or that Hayley Saunders had already been taken into custody earlier that day and was unlikely to play? Or that Drulis had been given 72 hours to prepare for the next round? The fact that Larkin met with Drulis the day before the game to discuss "sobriety" is pretty remarkable. Larkin, arguably the most studied and least noticeable man in the world, has been a national figure for over 30 years. He has twice held the position of Prime Minister of New Zealand and was a key witness in the famous Keating Five, a scandal that damaged the government of the day. He appears to be the living embodiment of patience. It's worth noting, of course, that Larkin's gesture was not just a public service to his teammates. His motives were his own. The Larkin's served as the hosts of the event and

Q: Designing a small circuit with analog control (dc/ac voltage controlled oscillator) As the title says, I am designing a small circuit to be connected between two circuits, both of which are isolated and may be replaced with a signal generator. The reason why I need a multiple frequency generator is because I am trying to provide a very narrow bandpass filter (ie no other signals besides my desired frequency, say 1kHz, can be output). The purpose is to isolate the desired signal from the other signals. Since the second circuit outputs a dc level, I am using an analog voltage controlled oscillator (VCO) to output a sine wave, which is then filtered by an analog filter and converted to an unipolar ac signal with a bandpass filter. Note the two circuits work from a single DC power supply. The problem is that I have to use a line transformer, because the voltage difference between the two circuits is too high for a single wire, and I do not have a power supply with a rated minimum voltage difference. So a line transformer between the two circuits is necessary, which will serve as an isolation barrier. The VCO will be part of a signal generator, which has an input power supply with a rated maximum voltage difference between the two circuits. The circuit will be implemented using C2000 parts, which means I have to use 2 push buttons instead of one. I am currently designing the circuit, and I cannot provide the exact values of inductor and capacitor that I need. I will add a diagram of my circuit below. Any suggestions? A: Inductors are typically much more efficient (energy vs. size) than transformers. If possible I'd use a linear H-bridge instead of the switches as they typically consume much less power. If you want to make a very narrow bandpass filter, then there's no way around an inductor(s), but you should be able to use a smaller one. The critical parameter is the bandwidth of the system. If you can't achieve that, then you have very little to gain from your VCO. Edit: Based on the input from @Dan D., I'd suggest using a L-C filter. Typically the bandwidth of this is not your choice, the internal electronics of the microelectronic device will have a chosen bandwidth for their own internal topology, but the filter can be
