Jonathan did not respond to a request for comment from the Guardian. The claim that the former employee was a former agent who had been terminated has been disputed by numerous sources. Farrow was an employee of NBC at the time of the incident and said in the documentary that he was a freelancer. The claim has dogged Dr. Craig S. Spencer, a former child protection and family court lawyer who worked as Farrow's lawyer in the case. Spencer has said Farrow did not name him as an expert witness. Farrow said Spencer was paid by a state office, but Spencer has said he was asked to provide expert testimony for a private case in family court in Cleveland. Spencer confirmed to the Guardian that the state office and private case were one and the same, but said he did d0c515b9f4
